

Interview set

Interview 1:

Location: Café XYZ

Date: March 20, 2024

Interviewer: Grégory

Grégory : Hello! Thank you for agreeing to participate in our research. My name is Grégory, and I'm conducting a study on holiday experiences with friends. This interview will take approximately 15 minutes. May I record our conversation for accuracy?

Interviewee: Sure, that's fine.

Grégory : Let's begin with some screening questions. Can you please share your age, occupation, and where you're from?

Interviewee: Of course. I'm 28 years old, I work as a graphic designer, and I'm from the nearby town.

Grégory : Great, thank you. Now onto the main questions. Can you describe how you typically plan holidays with friends?

Interviewee: Well, usually, we start by brainstorming ideas together and then try to find common ground on the destination and activities.

Grégory : That sounds like a collaborative approach. Have you encountered any challenges when coordinating schedules with friends for a holiday?

Interviewee: Definitely. It can be challenging to find dates that work for everyone, especially when dealing with different work schedules and personal commitments.

Grégory : Thank you for sharing that. Can you recall a specific instance where accommodation arrangements caused stress or discomfort during a holiday with friends?

Interviewee: Well, there was this one time when we couldn't agree on where to stay, and it led to some tension within the group.

Interview 2:

Location: Café XYZ

Date: March 20, 2024

Interviewer: Grégory

Grégory : Hello! Thank you for agreeing to participate in our research. My name is Grégory, and I'm conducting a study on holiday experiences with friends. This interview will take approximately 15 minutes. May I record our conversation for accuracy?

Interviewee: Sure, go ahead.

Grégory : Let's begin with some screening questions. Can you please share your age, occupation, and where you're from?

Interviewee: I'm 35 years old, I work as a teacher, and I'm originally from the city.

Grégory : Great, thank you. Now onto the main questions. Can you describe how you typically plan holidays with friends?

Interviewee: Well, usually, one person takes charge and suggests a destination, and then we all discuss and decide on the details together.

Grégory : That sounds like a structured approach. Have you encountered any challenges when coordinating schedules with friends for a holiday?

Interviewee: Absolutely. With everyone having different commitments and priorities, finding a time that works for everyone can be quite challenging.

Grégory : Thank you for sharing that. Can you recall a specific instance where accommodation arrangements caused stress or discomfort during a holiday with friends?

Interviewee: Yes, there was this one trip where we booked a hotel without considering everyone's preferences, and some of us ended up feeling quite uncomfortable with the choice.

Interview 3:

Location: Café XYZ

Date: March 20, 2024

Interviewer: Grégory

Grégory : Hello! Thank you for agreeing to participate in our research. My name is Grégory, and I'm conducting a study on holiday experiences with friends. This interview will take approximately 15 minutes. May I record our conversation for accuracy?

Interviewee: Yes, that's fine with me.

Grégory : Let's begin with some screening questions. Can you please share your age, occupation, and where you're from?

Interviewee: I'm 42 years old, I work as a software engineer, and I'm originally from a small town in the countryside.

Grégory : Great, thank you. Now onto the main questions. Can you describe how you typically plan holidays with friends?

Interviewee: Well, usually, we have a group chat where we discuss potential destinations and activities. Once we've narrowed down our options, we vote on where to go and start planning the details from there.

Grégory : That sounds like an organized approach. Have you encountered any challenges when coordinating schedules with friends for a holiday?

Interviewee: Definitely. With everyone having busy lives and different commitments, finding a time that works for everyone can be quite tricky.

Grégory : Thank you for sharing that. Can you recall a specific instance where accommodation arrangements caused stress or discomfort during a holiday with friends?

Interviewee: Yes, there was this one trip where we booked a vacation rental, but it turned out to be much smaller and less comfortable than we had anticipated. It led to some tension among us.

Interview 4:

Location: Café XYZ

Date: March 20, 2024

Interviewer: Grégory

Grégory : Hello! Thank you for agreeing to participate in our research. My name is Grégory, and I'm conducting a study on holiday experiences with friends. This interview will take approximately 15 minutes. May I record our conversation for accuracy?

Interviewee: Yeah, whatever.

Grégory : Let's begin with some screening questions. Can you please share your age, occupation, and where you're from?

Interviewee: I'm 30, I work in sales, and I'm from the city.

Grégory : Great, thank you. Now onto the main questions. Can you describe how you typically plan holidays with friends?

Interviewee: We just kinda go with the flow. Someone throws out an idea, and if we're up for it, we do it. No biggie.

Grégory : That sounds pretty laid-back. Have you encountered any challenges when coordinating schedules with friends for a holiday?

Interviewee: Not really. We're all pretty chill about it. If someone can't make it, they miss out. Life goes on.

Grégory : Thank you for sharing that. Can you recall a specific instance where accommodation arrangements caused stress or discomfort during a holiday with friends?

Interviewee: Nah, not really. We crash wherever, as long as there's a bed or couch, it's cool.

(Proceed with the main questions and responses)

Interview 5:

Location: Café XYZ

Date: March 20, 2024

Interviewer: Grégory

Grégory : Hello! Thank you for agreeing to participate in our research. My name is Grégory, and I'm conducting a study on holiday experiences with friends. This interview will take approximately 15 minutes. May I record our conversation for accuracy?

Interviewee: Um, I guess so, sure.

Grégory : Let's begin with some screening questions. Can you please share your age, occupation, and where you're from?

Interviewee: Uh, sure. I'm 25, I work in marketing, and I'm from the suburbs.

Grégory : Great, thank you. Now onto the main questions. Can you describe how you typically plan holidays with friends?

Interviewee: Well, it's, um, usually a group decision. We kinda discuss options and, uh, try to find something that works for everyone.

Grégory : It sounds like you're not entirely sure. Have you encountered any challenges when coordinating schedules with friends for a holiday?

Interviewee: Yeah, I mean, sometimes it's, um, hard to find a time that, you know, works for everyone. Schedules can be, uh, tricky.

Grégory : Thank you for sharing that. Can you recall a specific instance where accommodation arrangements caused stress or discomfort during a holiday with friends?

Interviewee: Um, I, uh, can't think of a specific example right now, but, um, I guess there have been times when, you know, we had to, like, compromise on where to stay.

Interview 6:

Location: Café XYZ

Date: March 20, 2024

Interviewer: Grégory

Grégory : Hello! Thank you for agreeing to participate in our research. My name is Grégory, and I'm conducting a study on holiday experiences with friends. This interview will take approximately 15 minutes. May I record our conversation for accuracy?

Interviewee: Sure, go ahead.

Grégory : Let's begin with some screening questions. Can you please share your age, occupation, and where you're from?

Interviewee: 29, accountant, city.

Grégory : Great, thank you. Now onto the main questions. Can you describe how you typically plan holidays with friends?

Interviewee: We discuss it together and then book stuff.

Grégory : Have you encountered any challenges when coordinating schedules with friends for a holiday?

Interviewee: Sometimes, yeah.

Grégory : Thank you for sharing that. Can you recall a specific instance where accommodation arrangements caused stress or discomfort during a holiday with friends?

Interviewee: Not really, it's usually fine.